How & When to Use the Livestock Seller Continuous Country of Origin Affidavit

Intended Use: The language above is intended for use by anyone selling livestock, including producers, backgrounders, stockers or dealers

For example: It is recommended that wherever possible marketing businesses collect a signed "Livestock Seller Continuous Country of Origin Affidavit". (The seller must declare the country of origin [USA, USA and/or Canadian, USA and/or Mexican, etc.] on the affidavit of any livestock he expects to sell through your business.) Once the marketing business has a signed continuous affidavit on file from a seller, no other affidavit or declaration of origin is necessary unless the origin of the livestock being sold has changed and the seller revokes the affidavit in writing. (If a seller brings in animals of an origin different that that declared on his/her continuous declaration, they should change their continuous declaration or sign a Single Transaction Affidavit/Declaration for that particular transaction.)

How it Works: A seller will complete this affidavit by filling in the five blank spaces with the appropriate information.

If selling through an auction market: in the space located in paragraph one the seller will declare the origin of all the livestock that they will sell or transfer through the receiving auction market. The origin can be declared as USA, USA and/or Canadian, USA and/or Mexican, etc. In the space located in the second paragraph the seller can list or the auction market can pre-print the auction name. In the final three spaces the seller will provide a signature, the date that the affidavit is being filed and if applicable, a ranch, farm or business name
